

BIO

Dr. Yen-Sheng Chiang is a sociologist interested in how social networks influence humans' behavior as well as how social network itself is formed. He published related research widely across disciplines, including biology, economics, political science, psychology and sociology. This talk showcases his enduring interest in working with scholars across disciplinary boundary to unpack the nature of human sociality.